

A Salute to the Washington Area's OUTSTANDING TEACHERS

The Washington Post Company Educational Foundation is pleased to announce the 21 winners of the Twenty-Sixth Annual Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher Awards.

Agnes Meyer, the wife of Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Post from 1933 to 1946, was a strong supporter of public education. The awards were established in her name to recognize dedicated teachers who have shown initiative, creativity and an exceptional degree of professionalism in teaching.

Winners are nominated by members of their community and selected by their individual school systems.

Quality education is essential to the well-being of a community and teachers are one of the critical factors in ensuring that the high standards of our school systems are met. The Washington Post Company Educational Foundation is proud to honor these outstanding men and women who exemplify excellence in their profession. They are people who care about and take pride in their work and their students.

Please join us in this tribute to a very special group of people who daily enrich the lives of our children.
